Subhash Chandra Bose

Subhash Chandra Bose passed through quarters inhabited by Englishmen and also met a large number of them in the tram cars. The British using these cars were purposely rude and offensive to Indians in various ways. The sensitive mind of Subhash Chandra revolted against such insulting and rude behavior of the British. On many occasions. There was an exchange of not words between him and misbehaving British. Majority of the students of the Presidency college, where he studies, were free thinkers. The college continued to be a storm centre and was looked upon by the British Government “as a hot bed of sedition rendezvous of revolutionaries” and was frequently searched by the police. The first two years of his life were greatly influenced by the group, which styled it self as the neo Vivekananda group and subhash developed intellectually during this period. The group generally followed the teachings of Ram Krishna and vivekanand with special emphasis on social service as means of spiritual development and was non-aligned to a revolutionary group. The shock of the great world war roused his political consciousness. He graduated at the age of 22 and enrolled himself for the post graduate with experimental psychology as a special subject. His father, however wanted him to go to England to appear for the Indian civil services. In spite of his mental reservations subhash took it as a challenge. In England, he was greatly impressed with the freedom allowed to students at Cambridge. Every student behaved in a dignified manner. Not with standing his pre occupation with his studies, he displayed his public spirit and fearlessness throughout his stay in England. He and K.L. Gouba were selected by Indian Majlis, to represent the British Government the difficulties. The Indian students encountered for admission to the university officers’ Tanning corps. Though he took a harsh view of the British high handedness and racial arrogance, he did admire their qualities which exacted him. He himself behaved there in a dignified way and was of the view that Indian who go abroad, must consider themselves to be unofficial ambassadors of the country, who should uphold their country’s prestige. He was quite serious in purpose and disliked anybody wasting time on trivialities.
