One-day Online seminar on Vedic science

(December 20, 2021)

Organized by

University of Patanjali
Patanjali Yogpeeth Haridwar -249405
Uttarakhand, India.

Vedas:

The Vedas contain hymns, incantations and rituals. Apart from their spiritual values, they provide mankind with values for everyday life. The most holy hymns and mantras have been put together into four collections and these are called the Rig, Sama, Yajur and Atharva Vedas. The four Vedas contain information on many aspects of arts, crafts, science and engineering.

Indian traditional scriptures i.e., Vedas considered to be the oldest scientific repository of knowledge available in both oral as well as written tradition by our visionary sages or the scholars of their times. The sages were described the routes or means or methods i.e. Svadhyaaya, meditation, yajnas and others to develop and energize the consciousness (life energy) in all the animate and inanimate beings of the world. During the literary work of our great scholars developed many branches in the form of literature on various subjects i.e., science of rituals, agamas, dramaturgy, music, architecture, astrology, astronomy, cosmology, medicine, surgery, military strategy, yoga, Mathematics, metallurgy etc. The sage scholars were provided incredible evidence that suggested the prevalence of scientific and technological knowledge in ancient India. The scholars of that time were well known for their contribution in the respective field. There were some well-known scholars that recognized by the world community of scientists, mathematicians and doctors i.e. Seers, Pravacanakas like Bharatamuni, Dattila, Matanga, Lagadha, Aryabhata, Bhaskara I & II, Varahamihira, Shushruta and Charaka. India was also known as 'Vishvaguru' (an intellectual leader of the world) not only in the domain of science and technology, but in every sphere of knowledge.
